

FUJIFILM Holdings Corporation

Kenji Sukeno

President and Chief Operating Officer

February 18, 2021

Notice of Completion Schedule for Acquisition of Diagnostic Imaging-related Business from Hitachi, Ltd.

As per the announcement of “Notice of Acquisition of Diagnostic Imaging-related Business from Hitachi, Ltd.” on December 18, 2019, FUJIFILM Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of FUJIFILM Holdings Corporation, has decided to acquire Diagnostic Imaging-related Business (the “Business”) from Hitachi, Ltd. (“Hitachi”) in order to further expand its Healthcare business.

Today, Hitachi and FUJIFILM Healthcare, which was established by Hitachi to absorb the Business, have signed an agreement for absorption-type company split. With the commencement of a procedure for company split in relation to the Business, Fujifilm announces that the acquisition process is expected to complete on March 31, 2021. The completion schedule has been undetermined as per the announcement of “Notice of Change in Completion Schedule for Acquisition of Diagnostic Imaging-related Business from Hitachi, Ltd.” on May 28, 2020.

Fujifilm, through this acquisition, further expands its Medical Systems business. The Business has a strong global presence, providing a comprehensive suite of products including CT, MRI, X-ray, and ultrasound systems. The business not only serves as a stable revenue base, but also shows potential for further growth. In recent years, vendors have been expected in clinical settings to provide solutions that directly benefit medical institution’s management, combining various products including CT, MRI, X-ray, PACS, endoscopy, and ultrasound systems. The product portfolios of Fujifilm and the Business overlap little. The combination of their product lineups dramatically enhances its capability to offer a comprehensive solution to medical institutions. In addition, Fujifilm’s advanced image processing technologies and AI technologies can be applied to products in the Business’s comprehensive lineup to create new values, contributing to high quality medical care. Such values will be delivered globally utilizing extensive sales network.

Fujifilm will establish a solid business foundation to become a world’s leading healthcare company and play a leading role in improving the quality of medical care.